Saturday, December 5 from 8:45 am - 10:00 am. A Temple Sinai Program – Chanukkah

Learning with Rabbi Mikelberg. Central to the Chanukkah narrative is Judah the Maccabee who countered the Greek message of assimilation. In more modern times, Theodore Herzl modeled the importance of being a visionary and assuring a Jewish homeland where we could practice our faith freely. Anat Hoffman is a strong present-day voice in Israel, demanding respect for women and progressive Jews. Looking towards the lights of Chanukkah, we'll immerse ourselves in these narratives and more and celebrate the values that keep us strong. Reminders from Cassandra & Helen

- Remember that there are a lot of expectations to be perfect and have things go perfectly around Christmas and the holidays. Remember we are all people and we all have flaws and make errors. Things will never go perfectly so just try your best.
- For those of us taking medication and seeing a doctor, just a friendly reminder that your doc may go on vacation and it's important to ensure you have enough meds to carry you through the holiday season.
- For those that need additional support while their care team is away, remember to utilize the warm lines and hotlines available.
- If you are reaching out to family or friends over the holidays for support try starting the conversation by saying, "I need some additional support in this area."
- If you're making a list of goals or tasks to do, ensure your Christmas/holiday goals are realistic and achievable.
- Overspending is easy to do. Remember to spend within your means some of the best gifts don't cost any money.
